

A key theme of the research findings was the challenge to change. This included feelings of frustration at the pace of change and relief when working with those who thought in a similar way.

Why can't you see?

*Why can't you see what I see?
I know it isn't right*

*Why can't you see what I see?
How can you sleep at night?*

*Why can't you see what I see?
I don't feel that I can cope*

*Why can't you see what I see?
Is there any hope?*

*So now you see what I see
You see it through my eyes*

*So now you see what I see
My hope no longer dies*

*So now you see what I see
Let's start to make things right*

*Now you see what I see
We can start to bring some light.*

©Nicky Genders